

Mapping Practices and Transpacific Transfers of Geographic Knowledge, Sixteenth to Early Nineteenth Centuries

Online workshop organized in the context of the ERC-funded project “TRANSPACIFIC: The Structure and Impact of Trans-Pacific Trade, 16th to 18th Centuries: The Manila Galleon Trade Beyond Silver and Silks” (ERC-2018-AdG, 833143).

The discussion of the workshop will be based on the pre-circulated papers. Each discussant will have up to 10 minutes to highlight interesting points and to ask questions. Afterwards, the author will be given a chance to respond to the issues raised by the discussant. The rest of the time will be allocated for a general discussion of the paper.

All times are in Central European summer time

Thursday, May 19

Chair: Elke Papelitzky

15:00

Introduction of project, participants

15:30

Richard Pegg (MacLean Collection, Illinois): Syncretic Spatial Considerations in an Eighteenth-century Chinese Maritime Chart

Discussant: Ronald Po

16:00

Reetta Sippola (University of Turku): The agential possibilities of materiality in the Arctic observations, 1778–1780

Discussant: Elke Papelitzky

16:30 Break

16:45

Wim De Winter (KU Leuven): European pirates and interlopers as knowledge gatherers on the Spanish Pacific, 16th-17th century

Discussant: Nino Vallen

17:15

Nino Vallen (Pacific Office of the German Historical Institute Washington): Mapping the Pacific Northwest: Cartography and Distributive Struggle in the Early Spanish Empire

Discussant: Heesoo Cho

Friday, May 20

Chair: Wim De Winter

15:00

Ronald Po (London School of Economics): Thomas Dunn and the Fusheng quantu

Discussant: Wim De Winter

15:30

Elke Papelitzky (KU Leuven): Red Lines in the Ocean: Sea Routes on Early Modern East Asian Maps

Discussant: Katherine Parker

16:00 Break

16:15

Heesoo Cho (Washington University in St. Louis): The Many Pacifics and their Origins in the Early Modern World

Discussant: Richard Pegg

16:45

Katherine Parker (Barry Lawrence Ruderman Antique Maps, Queen Mary University of London): "his Majesty & R. Highnesses Pleasure to have my Draughts:" Narbrough's Voyage to Valdivia and his travels into print, 1669–1711

Discussant: Reetta Sippola

17:15

Final discussion